THE MOFFETT REGISTER.

How it is Evaded by the Virginia Nation Keepers—The Amount of Revenue Returned—The Bett Punch as aPolitical Issue

From the New York Benid.

The Moffett Register is a cast iron box with machinery inside moving works like those of a gas meter. It has six dials on the surface. The first dial registers units the surface. The first dial registers units up to ten, the second tens up to a hundred, the third hundreds up to a thousand, and so on up to a million. It is a combination of the gas meter and an ordinary table gong or bell struck by a spring with a hammer attached. When a drink with a nammer attached. When a drink is sold the handle is turned, the bell punch announces the fact, and the hand on the first dial moves one point. This punch announces the fact, and the hand on the first dist moves one point. This is the Moffett register. It is secured by a simple, ingenious and very excellent lock, nvented by Mr. Johnson, the mechanic, who has the contract for making the ma-chines, and it is quite safe from being same red with.

ers or retail dealers of liquors to hav
two of these registers, one tor spirituou liquors and wine, the other for malt li quors. For every drink sold by the ba keeper, or half pint sold by the reta dealer, the crank of the register is turned the bell sounds and the hand on the uni
dial moves one point. The Commissione dealer, the crank of the register is turned, the bell sounds and the hand on the unit dial moves one point. The Commissioner of Revenue visits each place and takes the atate of the register three times a month, just as the state of the gas metre is taken at different periods. The tax on each drink of spirits or wine sold by the barkeeper, or on each half pint sold by a retail dealer, is two and a half cents, or on each drink or half pint of malt liquor one-half a cent. When it is known that one-half a cent. When it is known that the people of Virginia consume $15,000, 000 worth of ligner, and this tax and when it is further known that this tax, and when it is further known that the tax is certainly 33 per cent ad valo-ram on the liquor sold, it will be seen that the Moffett register ought to produce in Virginia a revenue of $3,300,000. The friends and sanguine advocates of this tax never could consent to admit that it would yield less than $1,000,000 to $500, 000 annually.

AMOUNT OF THE REVENUE. AMOUNT OF THE REVIEWE.

It is difficult at this time to form an estimate of what will be actually paid under the present inefficient system of enforcing the Moffett liquor law, but it seems probable that the total net income this year will not exceed $800,000, which is about two-thirds more than was previously received from the tax on liquors. The Auditor of Public Accounts in his report to the General Assembly, January 19, 1878, furnished a statement of partial returns from twelve cities and from thirty-three counties, and estimating the that returns rom weave cities and not thirty-three counties, and estimating the annual yield from those places for a whole year on the basis of what had been returned, placed the amount at $241,111, 17. He then estimates that the other sixty six counties will produce $100,000 more, making the total yield for the current year $341,111,17.

Tt is quite apparent now, with an ex-perience extended both in time and territory, that his estimate was excessive. As the liquor dealers, particularly the As the liquor dealers, particularly the saloon keepers, found in time a great falling off in their business on account of the crushing nature of the tax, they have been impelled more and more to evade the payment of it, and the returns have steadily diminished since January. The cause of this is the prodigious amount of the levy made on the liquor trade and the inefficiency of the law itself. The statute is crude, ill digested, easily evaded, and provides no adequate means of self enforcement and no effective machinery by which it can be enforced.

HOW THE LAW CAN BE ENFORCED. The registers are placed, according to the law, in the place where the liquor is sold, exposed to the public view. This is afficiently compiled with by placing them on the shelf behind the counter or bar, distant several feet from the spectator or customer, and it is impossible to tell in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred whether the machine registers or not. whether the machine registers or not Then the machine itself is defective. The dials on it are about the size of a hal dollar, which makes the hands and marks on it very small and practically invisible from the front of the bar. The fraudulent The Courier will reach Parkersburg on dealer can have a false bell which he can ring, and it would be very difficult to tell the sound of an ordinary gong from the sound of the one in the register. But the Timber, at a low figure-all sound of the one in the register. But the fact is that, as soon as the novelty of the register wears off, no one will pay the slightest attention as to whether the bell sounded or not. Indeed, the great majority of tipplers never think of the register unless they are accidentally register unless they are accidentally remained of it by the sound of the bell.

The Moffett liquor law imposes a fine to give up to the set than $20 nor more than $100 to frailing to register each and every drink sold, and gives one-third to the informer, REV. JOHN JASPER sticks to it that by loyal citizens, Jeff Davis must have been about the only disloyal man in the but such is the prejudice in Virginia against informers that this inducement has been found utterly inoperative. Indeed, so far has this predjudice gone that gentlemen who have informed on violators of the law solely from patrictic motives, and from a desire to have the law enforced, and who expressly refused to have anything to do with the fine, have been so misunderstood and misrepresentbeen so misunderstood and misrepresent-ed and set upon by public opinion that such patriotic and disinterested attempts at once ceased, so that there is absolutely no power to compel the fraudulent liquor dealer to register his sales unless he chooses to do so.

THE REGISTER AS A POLITICAL ISSUE. To inforce such an onerous tax very rigid laws will have to be enacted, and the people of Virginia will not tolerate rigorous tax or rigorous enforcement of any tax laws. The last General Assembly, of which Dr. Moffett was a leading and any tax laws. The last General Assembly, of which Dr. Moffett was a leading and influential member, controlled by "the readjustors" or repudiators, of whom the Doctor is a shining light, refused to pass any law amending the Moffett law so as to make it more efficient. The Senate, composed in the main of debt payers, made an earnest effort to increase the efficiency of the law and insure the more perfect collection of the tax, but the House, of which Dr. Moffett is a member, and in which he has very great, and, in several respects, controlling influence, refused to give the plan a reasonable consideration. This was largely caused by the readjusters, who were opposed to any measure for an increase of revenue whereby the necessity for repudiation would be weakened, but they used the impatience of their constituents at any rigorous tax laws as their excuse. The future of the Moffett tax in Virginia is very uncertain. Unless it is made more effective than it now seems to be, it will have to be repealed and some other more efficient tax will be imposed.

An average of $$ 33 per month for each register, which will not be unreasonable, will produce $$100 per annum, and for 5,000 registers will yield an income of $500,000 for the first year. But the non-execution of the law in many counties, and the disregard and evasion of it generally, would make it more reasonable to estimate the exercise response for the curmate the accruing revenue for the cur-rent year at not more than $300,000 When returns can be had from every county, and some idea can be formed of the ratio of tax to population, then a more just estimate can be made.

Rules for Hospitality.

Rules for Hospitality.

True hospitality is a thing that touches the heart, and never goes beyond the circle of generous impulses. Entertainment with the truly hospitable man means more than mere feeding of the body; it means an interchange of soul gifes. Still it should have its laws, as all hings good must have laws to govern

The obligation to be hospitable is sacred one, emphasized by every mortal code known to the world and a practical outcome of the second great command-

There should never be a guest in the house whose presence requires any con-siderable change in the domestic econo-

However much the circumstances of However much the circumstances of uniones, of mutual interests, may demand a entertaining a stranger, he should ever be taken into the iamily circle unsea he is known to be wholly worthy of place in that sanctum of social life; but then once a man is admitted to the home reside, he should be treated as if the place a place in that sanctum of social life; but when once a man is admitted to the home fireside, he should be treated as if the place was his always.

The fact of an invitation gives neither host or guest right to be master of the other's time, and does not require even a tomporary sacrifice of one's entire individuality or pur uits.

A man should never be so much himself as when he entertains a friend.

To stay at a friend's house beyond the time for which he is invited is to perpetrate a social robbery.

To abide uninvited in a friend's home is as much a misdemeanor as borrowing his ocat without his permission. It is debasing the coin of friendship to mere drows when a man attempts to make it pay his hotel bills.

The fact of two men having the same occupation in life gives to neither a social right to the other's bed and board. A traveling minister has no more right to go uninvited to a fellow preacher's house than a traveling shop keeper or shoemaker has to go uninvited to the house of his fellow craftsman. Men are ordained to the ministry as preachers, teachers and pastors, and not as private hotel keepers. They who go into the country as uninvited guests of their farmer friends should be rated as social brigands, and treated accordingly.

These few social maxims are by no means to be taken as a complete code of social laws. Others quite as important will spring up out of the personal experience of every reader of this article, and the justice and equity of all may be tested by that infallible standard of society—the golden rule. There can be no true hospitality that in practice is a violation of this rule; and you may safely rest assured that you have given the fullest and most perfect measure of entertainment to your neighbor if you have done exactly as you would be done by.

THE STEAM BOAT BILL. -The steamb bill says the New Orleans Times, is now before the Federal Senate, and a word bill says the New Orleans runes, is most before the Federal Senate, and a word about its nature and clauses may be in place. It has passed the House and is almost certain to pass the Senate without amendment. It will, therefore, soon become a law, when there will be another meeting of the Supervising Inspectors of Steam Vessels at Washington to alter the regulations under it.

The bill contains many minor provisions, but its principal features are that it reduces license fees from ten dollars to one dollar, which is an act of justice. For there is no good reason why the government should tax pilots and engineers on their calling any more than lawyers and doctors. The license is a protection to the public, for which the public should pay. It makes the Inspector's certificate prima facie evidence that the steamboat is in order.

WATERFORD, N. Y., has the champion absent minded young woman. She was recently married, and a few days after recently married, and a lew days after had her furniture insured, but the next day she appeared before the agent and wanted the policy changed, explaining that she had forgotten that she was mar-ried, and had had her maiden name in-serted in the policy.

WASHINGTON, April 23, 1878.—The friends of the Taxas Pacific railroad bill proposed to make an effort to secure the consideration of that measure in the Senate next week. As for the rates on cattle to St. Louis and Chicago, the present rate of $12 per car (good to time of shipping.) no such rates were ever before reached.
